THE WINDMILL

- Heckington Windmill is the only surviving 8 sailed windmill in the world and weather permitting, can be seen in full operation
- It was originally built in 1830 with 5 sails and was later converted to an 8 sail mill by John Pocklington
- The mill has 5 accessible floors via wooden ladders; the steps are steep but sturdy
- Children and adults can climb to the top floor and follow the progress of wheat into flour on each level
- You can go out onto the balcony on the 3rd level and view the site from above and see the modern wind turbines across the fens
- During tours of the mill the numbers in each group are reduced to a maximum of 8 in to ensure safety
- The mill is a living, working mill and as such can be dusty and noisy when it is operating. However this is not excessive and masks & hearing protection are not required
